RYEGATE. Death of Wm. T. Whitelaw. William T. Whitelaw, a native and for many years a prominent citizen of Rvegate, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. W. W. Wright in Boston, May 17, aged 79. Though not in vigorous health he was out of doors a day or two before, and the death was very sudden. During his active life Mr. Whitelaw was closely identified with public affairs in Ryegate, held many town offices and served the town as its representative in the legislature a number of terms. His death ends the life of an able man, successful and highly esteemed. For the past 15 years or more he has made his home with his daughter where he died. His wife, Lucy Morse of Ryegate, died about 20 years ago. Four children survive him, Mrs. W. W. Wright of Boston, Robert H. and Oscar L. of St. Louis and A. M. of this place. Two sisters are also living, one in Illinois and the second, Mrs. W. J. White of St. Johnsbury. The funeral services were held in this place at the home of
